Friends,

This did not come as a complete surprise. A federal judge on Tuesday, April 4, 2017, issued a preliminary injunction (attached) – at the request of Planned Parenthood - prohibiting enforcement of Missouri's longstanding pro-life laws requiring that abortion doctors have local hospital privileges, and that abortion clinics be licensed as ambulatory surgical centers.

After the U.S. Supreme Court in June struck down the Texas pro-life laws which were similar to Missouri's, Planned Parenthood and abortion doctors vowed to challenge similar state statutes. Planned Parenthood announced in November that it would challenge Missouri's laws so it could open four additional abortion clinics in Missouri - in Kansas City, Columbia, Springfield and Joplin.

I am confident that Missouri Attorney General Josh Hawley will vigorously defend Missouri's laws which protect the health and safety of women obtaining abortions. The Attorney General can appeal this and any other bad court rulings which prevent state lawmakers from regulating the abortion industry, which has a history of profiting from and preying on innocent pregnant women when they are most vulnerable.

Judge says he will block Missouri abortion restrictions

By Brendan Pierson

A federal judge in Missouri on Tuesday said he will block Missouri laws requiring doctors performing abortions to be affiliated with hospitals and abortion clinics to be licensed as ambulatory surgical centers.

U.S. District Judge Howard Sachs in Kansas City, Missouri said in a memorandum that he had decided to grant a motion by Planned Parenthood for a preliminary injunction blocking the laws. However, he said he would give the state time to develop a plan to avoid unintended consequences from the injunction.
